Ratio of downstream temperature change as a function of distance. Points represent individual site data.