Lindsey Capps
Education Policy Advisor to the Governor
Office of the Governor
Salem, Oregon

Lindsey:

The Governor's selection of Salam Noor as the nominee to succeed Rob Saxton is a superb choice. It's truly a home run, one that's been hit out of the ballpark.

I've had the privilege of recently communicating and meeting with Salam. His demeanor, professionalism, and instant ability to talk one-on-one as if you were an old colleague or simply the interested person I am, immediately struck me as impressive—and exactly the caliber of person to take the helm at the Oregon Department of Education (the department my father was privileged to have worked at for two previous Superintendents).

Please let the Governor know of the genuine and actual appreciation I for one feel for the well thought-out and exceptional choice she's made.

Salam will indeed serve well both the needs of the department and the overall interests of the state. There should be no hesitation by the Oregon Senate to confirm his nomination; in fact, its rules committee should take immediate steps to expedite his confirmation.

Sincerely,

Les Ruark
