

No left turns in/out of Royal Villa Drive starting Friday, Aug. 22

Construction began in June 2014 on a project to improve safety on OR 99W from Fischer Road to Durham Road in King City and Tigard. Once complete, traffic in the area should see a reduction in crashes and all road users will have a safer environment.

Impact to Royal Villa Drive

Beginning Friday, Aug. 22, left turns will not be permitted into or out of Royal Villa Drive. This is a permanent change. Road users who previously used the center median break at Royal Villa Drive to make left turns or U-turns, will need to use one of the following alternatives:

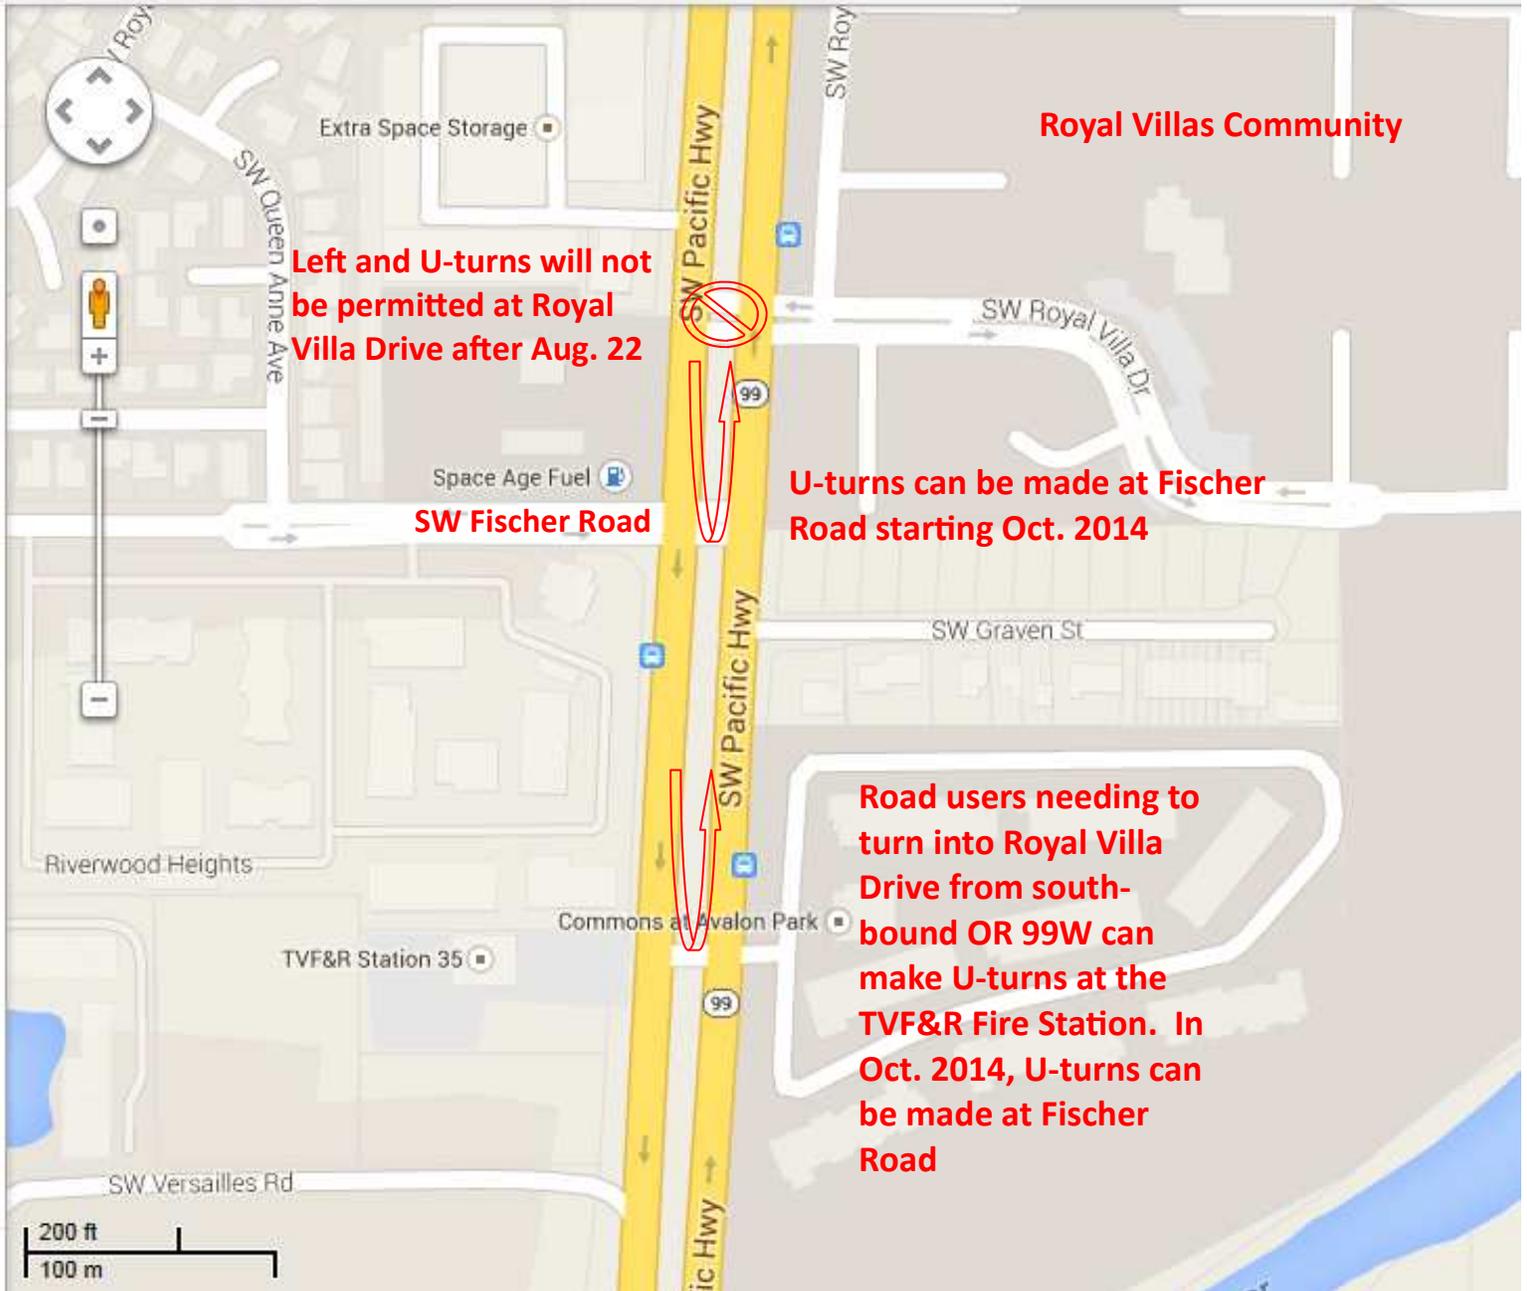

- All vehicles coming out of Royal Villa Drive onto OR 99W will be required to turn right. For those needing to go south, U-turns can be made at Durham Road
- From Aug. 22 to Oct. 31 (approx.): All vehicles heading south on OR 99W that want to turn left into Royal Villa Drive (or make a U-turn) will be required to travel farther south to the TVF&R Fire Station and make a U-turn there
- Beginning Oct. 31 (approx.): All vehicles heading south on OR 99W that would normally turn left into Royal Villa Drive (or make a U-turn) will be able to use the new U-turn signal at Fischer Road

Statistics show a high crash rate on OR 99W at Royal Villa Drive. The center median closure is required to eliminate T-bone crashes and other related crashes in the area.

Travelers should plan for congestion and short delays on OR 99W, Fischer Road and Durham Road throughout construction. Construction is slated for completion by November 2014.
