

Jamey Dempster, Regional Transit Coordinator: Region 2A

Jamey joined ODOT's Rail and Public Transit Division as a Region 2 Regional Transit Coordinator in August, 2014. He previously worked at Cambridge Systematics, Inc. in the New York and California offices. His experience there included transit planning and management, multimodal long-range planning, financial and economic analysis, land use planning, and travel demand forecasting. Jamey earned a Master of City and Regional Planning from the Rutgers University's Edward J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy, where he also worked at the National Transit Institute. His other experience includes affordable housing development finance, community-based planning, and non-profit management, and he served as a teacher with the U.S. Peace Corps in the Republic of Armenia. Jamey grew up in Newport, Oregon and studied at Linfield College, and is excited to be back to exploring the Northwest.
