History of Portland & Oregon

A Selected Bibliography

This bibliography lists books, theses, articles and other sources on the history of the city of Portland, the state of Oregon and the Pacific Northwest. It is intended for a wide audience, including historians, students and the general public; it is especially hoped that it will be useful in conjunction with its companion bibliography, Architecture, Architectural History & Historic Preservation in Portland & Oregon, to researchers and preservationists documenting the contexts and significance of Portland area historic resources. The citations are organized into the following sections:

1. Portland History

- Books, Theses & Monographs
- Articles in Scholarly Journals & Edited Collections
- Articles in Popular & Trade Journals

2. Oregon & Pacific Northwest History

- Books, Theses & Monographs
- Articles in Journals & Edited Collections

3. Portland Area & Pacific Northwest Native Peoples & Archaeology

4. Portland & Pacific Northwest History: Reference Works

- Books, Articles & Other Sources
- Portland & Pacific Northwest “Mug Books”
- Portland City Directories
- Local History Methods & Practices

While the emphasis is on secondary sources, many published works more strictly classifiable as primary sources are also listed. A special effort has been made to include graduate theses and dissertations, which often explore topics not well covered in published sources and constitute an under-utilized body of local historical research. A number of undergraduate theses have also been cited, including several from Reed College, which in many cases approach (or exceed) the quality of graduate work. Sources not generally listed here include oral histories, newspaper articles, and unpublished documents in manuscript and archive collections. Most sources focusing on architecture and the built environment are listed in a separate bibliography.

Many of the cited sources may be found in the Multnomah County Library: <http://catalog.multcolib.org/> or the Research Library of the Oregon Historical Society: <http://librarycatalog.ohs.org/WebOPAC/>. Some of the more elusive works may be found using the Orbis Cascade Alliance’s Summit union catalogue, which joins the online catalogs of over 30 Pacific Northwest college and university libraries: <http://summit.orbiscascade.org/search/>. Copies of most of the documents prepared by or for the City of Portland are held by the Stanley Parr Archives and Records Center, and may be identified through the online Efiles database: <http://www.portlandonline.com/auditor/index.cfm?c=26978&>. A small but growing number of out-of-copyright works listed here are available as full-text downloads through online sources such as Google Book: <http://books.google.com/> and Project Gutenberg: <http://www.gutenberg.org/> and others. Some have been transcribed in whole or in part and posted on various genealogy and history web sites such as Multnomah County GenWeb: <http://www.rootsweb.com/~ormultno/> and A Place Called Oregon: <http://gesswhoto.com/>.

This bibliography will be revised on an occasional basis; corrections and additions may be sent to: Nicholas T. Starin, Portland Bureau of Planning, 1900 SW 4th Ave., Suite 4100, Portland, OR, 97201; nstarin@ci.portland.or.us.

2. Oregon & Pacific Northwest History

The citations in this section are generally limited to works that focus on the state or region as a whole, areas near or significantly associated with Portland (for instance the Willamette Valley); and/or topics or themes of particular relevance to Portland and Oregon history. Thus, sources focusing on, for instance, Eastern Oregon or the city of Roseburg would not generally be listed here.

Portland & Pacific Northwest "Mug Books"

These historical and biographical reference works were usually funded through paid subscriptions and relied heavily on information provided by the individuals or businesses featured in them. Though they contain useful information, they should be treated with caution, especially the often separate "biographical" sections or volumes, as they can be overly flattering in tone and generally avoid subject matter that might have shed negative light on prominent institutions, individuals and subscribers.

A variety of other directories contain sections devoted to Portland, for example those that cover groups of Oregon and Pacific Coast cities, such as the Classified Business and Combination Telephone Directory of Portland and Neighboring Cities and Towns in Oregon and Washington, published by the Foster Directory Company in the early 20th century. Specialized directories are also helpful, for example the Wells, Fargo & Company Directory of Chinese Business Houses: San Francisco, Sacramento, Oakland, San Jose, Marysville, Los Angeles, Portland, Virginia City, Victoria, 1878-1882. Related sources such as street directories, reverse directories, blue books, club and “society” directories have valuable information sometimes overlooked by researchers concentrating on the more familiar standard City Directories.

Local History Methods & Practices

The following works may assist those who are unfamiliar with the methodologies of historical research and writing. David Kyvig and Myron Marty’s Nearby History: Exploring the Past Around You and the books in the Nearby History Series, published by American Association for State and Local History and the AltaMira Press, are particularly useful starting places for people learning to explore the history of their local environment.
